Combining verite footage, interviews and archival material, Los Angeles based film maker, Meena Nanji has fashioned a harrowing, thought-provoking, yet intimate portrait of the plight of Afghan women in the last 30 years-from the rule of King Mohammed Zahir Shah to the current Hamid Karzai government to the activist work of RAWA, the Revolutionary Association of the Women of Afghanistan. Over a period of five years, she spent months in a refugee camp in Pakistan, where she documented the political history of Afghanistan and US policy in the region through the lives of three women: Shapire, a teacher; Roena, a physician; and Wajeeha, a social activist.

Run time: 80 mins, language: English narration and subtitles
